Description of discontinuation

The HEAVYCON housings listed above are being discontinued. The replacement products are fully compatible.

Because the replacement products are made of higher-quality aluminum, the need for any anti-corrosive powder coating is eliminated. Without the powder coating, the surface is conductive and, combined with conductive sealing elements, provides 360° shielding. Thus, the replacement products can be used in unshielded and shielded applications. Only the threaded connection needs to be adjusted. The replacement products provide an IP66/IP67 degree of protection (IP65 for discontinued products).
