Modification of the fixing nut for the M12x1 thread
Please forward this information to your electrotechnical departments!

Dear Sir or Madam

Due to a production optimization, a phase on both sides of the M12x1 nut has been implemented to deburr the edge. Thus, additional visible scratch marks that can occur at coated front plates when mounting the nut are reduced. Further dimensions as well as technical features remain the same.

The new version is expected to be delivered as of May 6, 2014.

Do you have any questions? You are welcome to contact our support engineer or the sales team in Blomberg.

Yours faithfully
